Is It Moral to vote for Cheaters?

While volunteering at the polling place this week we witnessed the glaring difference between how the Republicans and Democrats act. Republican signs were routinely defaced and stolen. Democrat signs were largely unmolested.

What is worse is what is happening with Democrat led States all across America, States with democratic governors are sending our unsolicited ballots to everyone, dead or alive. Democratic legal teams are filing suite to allow ballots to be counted even if they are received after Election Day. This can only be construed as an attempt to flood the polls with invalid ballots.

Moreover, Republican voters are showing up in polling places only to be told that their vote was already tabulated. They are told that the fraudulent ballot will count and handed a worthless provisional ballot. This is happening primarily in counties with Democratic Supervisors of Elections. This indicates that voter fraud is happening and that voter ID laws are ignored or circumvented.

It makes you wonder what goes through the mind of someone who would commit voter fraud, steal and deface campaign signs. The only logical explanation is that they are compelled by jealousy and greed. People who commit these illegal acts must believe the risk is worth the reward. By their very actions, they are forecasting that their preferred candidate will use their power to give them something they do not deserve. Voting for a candidate supported by fraud or theft may not be an immoral act but it is a warning sign. You have to ask what has the candidate promised that would prompt the theft and fraud. Ignoring that warning may or may not be immoral but it is definitely irresponsible

The President Called Me

By John Knapp

We went and voted this afternoon. Donald Trump had especially called me from the White House yesterday afternoon. He couldn't talk very long, as he had to call the rest of the country before dinner time to remind them, too. Anyway, he told me we needed to get our votes cast, so we did. After I voted, I went around and got in line again to see if I could get another ballot, but the masked little old ladies were on to me, so I only got to vote once. Drat. I hated that.

Knapp Photo

Anyway, back to the lifetime achievement of it. This makes the 12th time I've voted against national Liberal-Socialist-Marxists. I first voted for Richard Nixon in 1972. Nixon eventually screwed up and let me down....twice....One was the Watergate thing, of course, which, compared to the late model Biden Family Crime Consortium, was the equivalent of 6 or 7 missing peanuts, even back then. Yet, Poor Richard, Tricky Dick Nixon also insisted on including Red China as one of America's international buds, a bad idea which has come back round to bite America in the spades. Turns out, you can't trust democrats any more now than you could ever trust the Chinese Communist Party, even back then. Gee, who knew? Well, obviously not Nixon, who was a klutz, not a world-class treasonous crook like somebody else currently running for president on the scam.

Anyway, I've lived long enough to vote for Donald Trump twice now, and against all the brain-dead, lying, treasonous, completely reprehensible and soulless Marxist-Socialists out there, from Crooked Joe all the way down to any completely useless butthead who makes coffee deep into the night to serve to Antifa and Black Lives Matter thugs while they try to go about tearing down America.

More later, Stay tuned.

Foxy Fox News Scuttles Trump

Fox News Screen Shots Photos

The pictures really tell the story which shocked the viewer base of Fox News on election night. An early indication of what was to come is reflected in the logo chosen for the election night program, "Fox News Democracy 2020". The logo would have been better suited to CNN where democracy is glorified. Conservatives understand that the United States Constitution created a Republic not a democracy.

Brit Bair and Martha MacCallum were the Hosts and the show featured Christ Wallace, Juan Williams, Karl Rove, Brit Hume and Donna Brazile.

Brit Bair's famous quote, Fair and Balanced and Unafraid did not hold true for election night. None of Fox's conservative personalities were present in the lineup. By the way, Mr. Bair, journalism isn't about fair and balanced, it is about telling the truth. Balancing RINOs, Democrats and "Never Trumpers" doesn't constitute news that has any value. Nor does America need an establishment Republican news outlet.

It has been reported that massive numbers of Fox viewers switched to Newsmax to complete their viewing of the night's events. The deliberate break with President Trump will assure ratings similar to CNN.

Election Fraud Over Many Years

By Roderick T. Beaman

At this late date, the 1960 Richard Nixon-John Kennedy election is still in dispute. Chicago Mayor Richard Daley has been credited with swinging Illinois into Kennedy's column with an 'adjustment' of the vote. It was under Daley that Chicago became the city that was so political that in every election the dead voted once and the living voted twice.

There were also irregularities rumored in West Virginia and Colorado but especially Texas, the home & native state of Lyndon Johnson, Kennedy's running mate. Kennedy & Johnson despised each other but Kennedy chose Johnson as a southerner to provide the regional balance that many regarded as crucial for national tickets. The then Solid (Democratic) South was becoming restive with the liberal trends of the national party.

Johnson, for his part, was no stranger to electoral irregularities. He had been a Representative from Texas and ran in the Democratic primary for the senatorial nomination. He was slightly behind when a box of ballots was somehow found in Precinct 13 in rural Jim Wells County, just west of Corpus Christi. The 202 ballots were arranged alphabetically, which meant that the voters had stood in line to vote alphabetically and, just by chance, had signed the ballots using the same colored ink with the same handwriting and, even by greater chance had all voted for Lyndon B. Johnson. Amid many questions, Kennedy won Texas with 50.42 % of the vote.

Nixon was urged by many to request a recount. Nixon declined instead, accepting the loss. Years later, he was asked by David Frost why he didn't; he said that he didn't want questions of dishonest elections to be raised about America with its position in the world as a beacon of democracy. And these things were from more a half century ago!

Today, duplication has become so sophisticated that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has had to change American currency due to the accuracy of some counterfeited bills. Next to that it would have to be like child's play to duplicate ballots for mailing.

Thus, although recounts might be unlikely to change the outcomes in just six cities and five states, I think is likely to be far more extensive and widespread to possibly every county in the country. To detect all of this or even 95% of it might be beyond law enforcement capabilities.

There is Hope for History being Preserved in Palatka

Dear Ms. Lunelle,

On Monday evening November 9, 2020, alongside the Honorable Attorney David McCallister and yourself, we would have supper with Palatka's County Commissioner Jeff Rawls, his wife Dawn, and their baby boy Liam. Commissioner Rawls was the lone County Commissioner to voice a vote not to remove the Confederate Cenotaph from the Courthouse grounds in downtown Palatka.

With great pleasure, I would spend the greatest part of my time confabulating with their seven-year-old genius son who enthralled me with tales of his entrepreneurial activities as a Free Range egg merchant, and the history of his chickens; one of which lay green eggs.

On Tuesday afternoon we would drive to the County Commissioners office building and be greeted by the large crowd gathered both outside and inside the building with what can only be described as something synonymous to heroes welcoming for a conquering Roman General would have received. Almost put me in tears, and I would tell everyone so, and that I felt like singing Dixie; they would right away accommodate me right outside the chamber doors. It was great!

HK Edgerton leading Cenotaph supporters in singing "Dixie" before Putnam Co. Commission meeting

I could not have been made more proud of those wonderful citizens who spoke in support of not moving the Cenotaph; especially so when a Yankee woman brought the house down with her dissertation of support for the Southern people and their Memorials to the Confederate armed forces. She would receive a thunderous ovation.

The County Commission Chair made it clear that the County would not fund the removal of the Cenotaph to a proposed location, the so-called "Veterans Park"; a finger of land on the St. Johns River in the flood plain under a bridge.

However, after two resolutions failed to get a second on the proposal, the Chair expressed his determination to settle the matter before the evening was up.

Commissioner Rawls offered up a resolution to move the sidewalk that leads to the entrance of the courthouse so that those who lie about how they are negatively mentally challenged when they pass the Cenotaph and fear that no justice would be served them in the courthouse because of the Cenotaph. Pure poppycock; and I would tell the Commissioners and members of the public that this was a lie, and those who spit it out could not pass a lie detector test to support their claim.

After much arm twisting and introduction of the same failed motion a second time; the Commission accepted what they called a “compromise”... those who wanted the Cenotaph removed had to come up with two hundred thousand dollars in ninety days to do so, or the Cenotaph would remain in place. The money would have to come from the citizens of Putnam County.

Rain from hurricane Eta had begun and in the rush, forgot to get the eggs that Liam had brought for you, Mr. McCallister, and me. Please tell him not to sell my eggs! God bless you!

Your brother, HK

Inconveniences of the Background of the Constitution

By Roderick T. Beaman

With Amy Coney Barrett's nomination for The Supreme Court by Donald J. Trump, there has been much lamenting about protecting our constitutional rights. What are our constitutional rights? Some history is informative.

When the Constitutional Convention was announced, two states specifically instructed their delegates to not draft a new constitution to replace The Articles of Confederation. Two states had established religions. Rhode Island did not send a delegate.

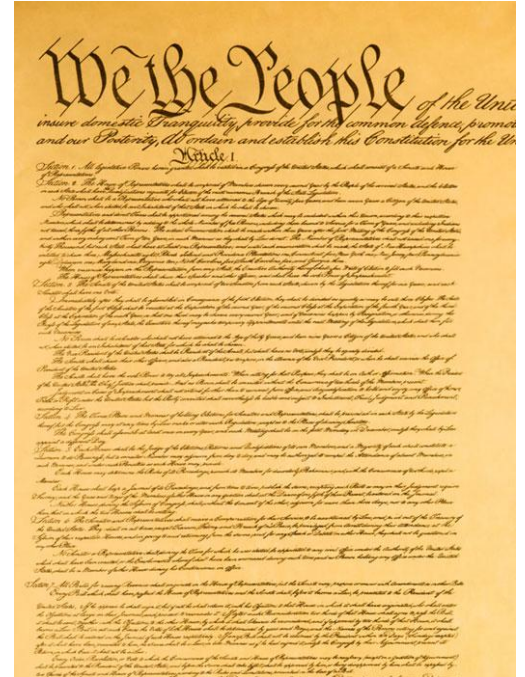

The purposes of The Constitution were "to...form a more perfect Union, establish justice, to insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty..." They were laid out in The Preamble.

The Federalist Papers were written to persuade a reluctant New York to ratify The Constitution and become the ninth and deciding state to make it legal. New York didn't but New Hampshire did then Virginia, another reluctant state.

There were ample objections to it, many published in the Anti-Federalist Papers. Patrick Henry was among the most prominent, asking who gave them the right to speak for we the people, referring to The Preamble. The delegates were not elected but appointed so he had a valid point.

The First Congress convened on April 1 (a good date for any government to convene), 1789 and George Washington was inaugurated on April 30 but North Carolina and Rhode Island still had not ratified. North Carolina did on November 21, 1789 but Rhode Island remained recalcitrant.

This so incensed Congress that the Senate passed a bill banning all trade with it which would have effectively isolated it. There also was a proposal to subject its products to tariffs, like a foreign country.

FB Image

Before the House could vote on it, the state ratified, on May 29, 1790, by a vote of the legislature by 34-32. It was the only state to ratify by legislative act rather than by a convention. It had rejected numerous attempts to even have one.

From all of this, it should be obvious that the states were very jealous of their autonomy and demanded assurance that it would be respected. It hasn't. Today, all states are considered subjugate to the federal government. The 1783 Treaty of Paris, ending the War for Independence, was worded in such a way that the Crown accepted the independence of thirteen free & separate states, i.e. countries.

It is reasonable to conclude that The Constitution was meant to be a strait-jacket of restriction of the federal government's power and not an enabling document as has been the case, especially since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt. And that is one of the prime things that should be on the minds of our judges but it won't be.

The Constitution was supposed to restrict the power of the federal government. The debate should center on whether any law increases federal government power or decreases state power and individual freedom. Almost all laws fail that test and most, therefore, should never have been passed. Few in government will accept that. It's about time they did.

Looking for Massive Voter Fraud?

Democrats have always been very good at accomplishing fraudulent activities within the voting process. Republicans have been very good at rushing to concede to the fraudulent voting results. "For the good of the Country", they say. And then there's the unwillingness to get down into the dirt and fight, being the country club gentlemen that they perceive themselves to be. The truth is, the Republican Party does not know how to govern constitutionally, but they wish to be in the game for the graft.

Currently there are two areas that illustrate massive voter manipulations. The first one involves executive governmental officials and the judicial, changing the rules governing the elections within the individual states. We have Attorney Generals, Supervisors of Elections, Governors, and Judges, all jumping in to adjust rules regarding the voting procedure. According to the Constitution of the United States, none of these individuals has the authority to change the rules. That authority has been delegated to the Legislative branch of the individual states. Any rule changes, other than those by the Legislative, affecting the outcome of the election are illegal, unconstitutional and have no validity under the law. Therefore the massive ballot mailings that have been authorized in many states would not be counted if "Constitutional Law" were followed. The Supreme Court of the United States will no doubt resolve this issue. Don't hold your breath, there are many "Deep State" advocates hiding under those black robes.

The second area of mass voter fraud is the manipulation of computer software to adjust the outcome of the election. Computer software with provisions for making adjustments in the same fashion that the CIA made adjustments in third world countries with their elections. Dominion and affiliates, with international connections, eventually leading to George Soros, are involved in 27 states; 23 states plus the District of Columbia are using other software. However, there are only 9 states and the District of Columbia that have zero switched or lost votes. The vote has been adjusted to benefit the Democrats in 41 states.

The Deep State at all levels has been relatively successful in suppressing the extent of the voter fraud aided by the Social Media Tech Corporations and the MSM. The answer to the question about massive voter fraud is an overwhelming... YES! There has been a massive Trump victory which is being covered up. If the American people accept the hoax then, with the absence of a political solution, history teaches us that war is likely.

Free States vs. Slave States

It's up to You!

Welcome to Florida!

Floridians rejected the new wave of socialism because they knew what the next step, before communism, is. It's called "The Dictatorship of the Proletariat". Described as, when all existing structures are torn down, burnt and pillaged, with the strongest of the strong Commie Gang members fighting one another to take control of the disaster.

TCCR Staff Photos

When the war is over the winning side becomes the Czars and Rule with an iron fist. No doubt about it, there's something evil about Communism; it always eliminates Individual Liberty and a free society.

In Saint Augustine, for the last several weeks, Grassroots Patriots of all sizes, sexes, denominations and party affiliations have been on the street in St Augustine waving their homemade signs and flying their patriotic Trump, American Flags and Don't Tread on me Flags to an endless stream of cars, horns blowing, at the corner of Rt. 312 and US1 the busiest intersection in St. Johns County, Florida. The Patriots were on the street for the second week in a row to 'Stop the Steal', now a growing movement around the USA!

"They ain't going to steal this election from us. We're going to catch em, cuff em, and throw them in jail", said an old-timer with a Southern drawl. When asked where he was from, he said, "New York City. How's my accent?" A sleeping giant is awakening. The movement that started with Tea Party lives on.

There is a massive awareness taking place. Some States are "Slave States". Some States are free States. Florida is clearly free. Soon the Slave States in the North and on the two coasts will explode. The fake pandemic, the fake media and the theft of the election will not be tolerated. Rejoice America, slavery is not your heritage; Liberty is!

A Memorial to Dustin

A Memorial Service for Dustin James Acosta was held at the St. Johns Family Funeral Home on November 23, 2020.

His family and his allies in Liberty filled the facility with overflowing numbers.

The Honor Guard, which was originally scheduled to be on Hwy 207 in front of the Funeral Home, assembled in the chapel at the request of the family.

The flag bearers presented historical and current flags that well represented the struggle for Liberty in America. A cause that Justin, though only 28 years old, completely understood as he demonstrated with his determination to resist the tyranny we now see on the streets of our historic city.

There was never a rally or a demonstration in the past three years which did not reflect Dustin's infectious love of freedom and liberty and his determination to face tyranny head on.

Dustin's violent death, at the hands of the police, will inspire those who continue the fight for freedom.
